FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

Senator Richard Blumenthal and Representative John Conyers, Jr., along with 199 other members of Congress, for their complaint against Donald J. Trump, in his official capacity as President of the United States of America, allege as follows:

I.
INTRODUCTION

1. Plaintiffs, 30 members of the United States Senate and 171 members of the United States House of Representatives, bring this action against President Donald J. Trump to obtain relief from the President’s continuing violation of the Foreign Emoluments Clause of the United States Constitution, which was designed to ensure that our nation’s leaders would not be corrupted by foreign influence or put their own financial interests over the national interest. To achieve those aims, the Clause provides that “no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under [the United States], shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince, or foreign State.”¹ Through this measure, the nation’s Founders invested members of Congress with an important role in preventing the corruption and foreign influence that the Founders sought to avoid—permitting federal officeholders to accept otherwise prohibited “Emolument[s]” only if they first received “the Consent of the Congress.”

2. Defendant, President Donald J. Trump, has a financial interest in vast business holdings around the world that engage in dealings with foreign governments and receive benefits from those governments. By virtue of that financial interest, Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from “foreign State[s]” while holding the office of President of the United States.

3. Because the Foreign Emoluments Clause requires the President to obtain “the Consent of the Congress” before accepting otherwise prohibited “Emolument[s],” Plaintiffs, as members of Congress, must have the opportunity to cast a binding vote that gives or withholds their “Consent” before the President accepts any such “Emolument.”

4. Despite this constitutional mandate, Defendant has chosen to accept numerous benefits from foreign states without first seeking or obtaining congressional approval. Indeed, he has taken the position that the Foreign Emoluments Clause does not require him to obtain such approval before accepting benefits arising out of exchanges between foreign states and his businesses. Because Defendant has failed to come to Congress and seek its consent for at least some foreign emoluments that have been the subject of public reporting, it is impossible to know whether Defendant has also accepted, or plans to accept, other foreign emoluments that have not yet been made public. By accepting these benefits from foreign states without first seeking or obtaining congressional approval, Defendant has thwarted the transparency that the “Consent of the Congress” provision was designed to provide.

5. Moreover, by accepting these benefits from foreign states without first seeking or obtaining congressional approval, Defendant has also denied Plaintiffs the opportunity to give or withhold their “Consent” to his acceptance of individual emoluments and has injured them in their roles as members of Congress.

6. To redress that injury, Plaintiffs seek declaratory relief establishing that Defendant violates the Constitution when he accepts any monetary or nonmonetary benefit—any “present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever”—from a foreign state without first obtaining “the Consent of the Congress.” Plaintiffs also seek injunctive relief ordering Defendant not to accept any such benefits from a foreign state without first obtaining “the Consent of the Congress.”

II. PARTIES, JURISDICTION, AND VENUE

7. Richard Blumenthal is a United States Senator who represents the state of Connecticut. Senator Blumenthal is the Ranking Member of the Constitution Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

8. John Conyers, Jr. is a United States Representative who represents Michigan’s 13th congressional district. Representative Conyers is the Ranking Member of the House Judiciary Committee.

9. Additional plaintiffs are the 29 members of the United States Senate and 170 members of the United States House of Representatives whose names appear in the caption of this Complaint.

10. As members of Congress, Plaintiffs have been entrusted by the Constitution with the important role of determining when the President and other individuals who hold an “Office of Profit or Trust” under the United States may accept “Emolument[s]” from “foreign States.” By empowering members of Congress with this important gatekeeping role, the Founders provided a mechanism by which federal officeholders could accept benefits from foreign governments in appropriate circumstances while still maintaining a structural safeguard against corruption and foreign influence.

11. Defendant Donald J. Trump is the President of the United States of America and thus holds an “Office of Profit or Trust” under the United States. He is being sued in his official capacity as President of the United States.

12. This Court has subject-matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 2201.

13. Venue is proper in this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1). Defendant is “an officer . . . of the United States . . . acting in his official capacity or under color of legal authority,” and the District of Columbia is a “judicial district” in which the “defendant in the action resides,” in which “a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred,” and in which “a substantial part of property that is the subject of the action is situated.” For example, Trump International Hotel Washington, D.C., which is central to some of Plaintiffs’ allegations, is located in this district.

III. BACKGROUND

14. Article I, Section 9, Clause 8 of the U.S. Constitution provides: “No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince, or foreign State.” Commonly known as the “Foreign Emoluments Clause,” this provision reflects the Founders’ deep concern that corruption and foreign influence could undermine the new republic and harm the American people.

15. Because the Founders believed that corruption was one of the gravest threats to the new nation, they viewed anti-corruption measures as essential to preserving an enduring republican system of government. As George Mason warned his fellow delegates at the Constitutional Convention, “if we do not provide against corruption, our government will soon be at an end.”² Thus, in drafting the Constitution, the Founders sought to ensure that “corruption was more effectually guarded against, in the manner this government was constituted, than in any other that had ever been formed.”³ Alexander Hamilton explained that “[n]othing was more to be desired than that every practicable obstacle should be opposed to cabal, intrigue, and corruption.”⁴

16. This preoccupation with stemming corruption, born of the Founders’ experience under British rule, pervaded the debates at the Constitutional Convention. According to James Madison’s notes of the Convention, fifteen delegates used the word “corruption” no fewer than fifty-four times,⁵ and corruption was a topic of discussion on almost a quarter of the days that the Convention was in session.⁶ The Founders wanted to ensure that in the United States, unlike in Britain, the nation’s leaders would be dependent on the people alone—not on those who would give them financial benefits—and would be motivated solely by the national interest, not their own personal interests. To promote that goal, the Founders included in the nation’s new charter a number of safeguards against corruption. These safeguards took the form of “procedural devices and organizational arrangements” meant to ward off “dependency, cabals, patronage, unwarranted influence, and bribery.”⁷

17. The Founders were also deeply worried that foreign powers would interfere with America’s internal affairs, undermining the nation’s republican institutions and making its leaders subservient to foreign interests. Alexander Hamilton wrote that one of the vulnerabilities of republics “is that they afford too easy an inlet to foreign corruption.”⁸ During the Constitutional Convention, Elbridge Gerry warned that “[f]oreign powers will intermeddle in our affairs, and spare no expence to influence them,”⁹ while Gouverneur Morris invoked “the melancholy picture of foreign intrusions as exhibited in the History of Germany,” and “urged it as a standing lesson to other nations.”¹⁰

18. Of particular concern to the Founders was the risk that foreign states would give benefits and rewards to the nation’s chief executive to subvert his loyalty. As Hamilton noted, the personal interest of a hereditary monarch was “so interwoven with that of the Nation . . . that he was placed above the danger of being corrupted from abroad.”¹¹ By contrast, as Madison observed, an elected President would lack “that permanent stake in the public interest which would place him out of the reach of foreign corruption.”¹² During the state debates over ratification of the Constitution, former delegate Charles Cotesworth Pinckney similarly explained that while “kings are less liable to foreign bribery and corruption . . . because no bribe that could be given them could compensate the loss they must necessarily sustain for injuring their dominions the situation of a President would be very different.” As a temporary officeholder, the President “might receive a bribe which would enable him to live in greater splendor in another country than his own; and when out of office, he was no more interested in the prosperity of his country than any other patriotic citizen.”¹³ This threat prompted the Founders to reject entrusting the treaty power solely to the President—susceptible as he was to foreign influence—and instead to require Senate approval, among other precautions.¹⁴

19. As the Founders saw it, the dangers of corruption and foreign influence were joined together in the contemporary European practice of diplomatic gift-giving. Eighteenth-century ambassadors and ministers were typically bestowed lavish presents by the monarchs with whom they dealt, often consisting of “jewels, plate, tapestry, or porcelain, or sometimes of money.”¹⁵ The “usual presents from the European Courts” varied by country, and “in Holland, it was customary to give a gold chain and medal; in France, a gold snuff-box; and in Spain, a picture.”¹⁶ America’s Founders, however, made a clean break from such customs as soon as they established their own national government under the Articles of Confederation, prohibiting “any person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them” from “accept[ing] any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.”¹⁷ Emphatically rejecting the custom of foreign gift acceptance, the Founders sought to cultivate undivided loyalty on the part of American officeholders. Absolute in its language, there was, in practice, only one exception to the ban: an officeholder could accept a foreign benefit if it was presented to Congress and if Congress approved of its receipt.¹⁸

20. This restriction on accepting foreign emoluments was one of the few measures to be transferred from the Articles of Confederation to the new Constitution in 1787, reflecting its importance to the Founding generation. At Philadelphia, the Foreign Emoluments Clause was added to the draft of the new Constitution by unanimous agreement of the state delegations after Charles Pinckney “urged the necessity of preserving foreign Ministers & other officers of the U.S. independent of external influence.”¹⁹ In adding that Clause, the Founders largely borrowed the language of the precursor provision in the Articles of Confederation, but they made one important change: they “institutionalized the practice” that federal officeholders could accept otherwise prohibited emoluments from foreign states if they first obtained the consent of Congress.²⁰

21. During ratification, Edmund Jennings Randolph emphasized the twin evils that the Clause was meant to avert, explaining that “[i]t was thought proper, in order to exclude corruption and foreign influence, to prohibit any one in office from receiving or holding any emoluments from foreign states.”²¹ A prominent contemporary pamphleteer urging ratification stressed the value of the Clause in similar terms: “The influence which foreign powers may attempt to exercise in our affairs was foreseen, and a wholesome provision has been made against it.”²² In sum, the Clause was “founded in a just jealousy of foreign influence of every sort.”²³

22. Because the Founders wanted to eliminate “foreign influence of every sort,” they drafted the Clause with language “both sweeping and unqualified,”²⁴ “prohibit[ing] those holding offices of profit or trust under the United States from accepting ‘any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever’ from ‘any . . . foreign State’ unless Congress consents.”²⁵ Consistent with that broad language, the Clause has been understood to be “‘directed against every kind of influence by foreign governments upon officers of the United States,’ in the absence of consent by Congress.”²⁶

23. Notably, the word “emolument” was defined broadly in the eighteenth century to mean “profit,” “advantage,” “benefit,” and “comfort.”²⁷ Contemporary writers used the term to

24. Thus, it has long been understood by Congress and the executive branch that the Foreign Emoluments Clause applies to the acceptance of any benefits or advantages from foreign states—including compensation for services rendered in a private capacity. Benefits and advantages that have been viewed as falling within the scope of the Clause include the following:

25. As these examples illustrate, the Clause has long been understood to apply to any rewards or benefits given by foreign states—whether tangible or honorary, monetary or nonmonetary, of great value or slight. This interpretation prevents officeholders from accepting anything from a foreign state that might weaken their independence or cause them to act against the national interest—a danger the Founders perceived even in the “trifling presents”⁴⁰ of ornament and jewelry that were customary of European diplomacy and that motivated the adoption of the Clause.⁴¹

26. By entrusting Congress with responsibility for deciding which specific benefits could be received from foreign states, the Founders ensured that federal officeholders would not decide for themselves whether particular emoluments were likely to compromise their own independence or lead them to put personal interest over national interest. An officeholder, in short, would not be the sole judge of his own integrity. The important separation-of-powers principle embodied in Congress’s gatekeeping role also ensured that any acceptance of foreign “Emolument[s]” would be transparent and subject to public examination, further minimizing the dangers of corruption and influence that such transfers of wealth or benefit might otherwise pose.

27. When Congress was first called upon to exercise this responsibility in 1798,⁴² lawmakers reaffirmed the views expressed a decade earlier during the Constitution's ratification about the dangers of foreign manipulation and the importance of the Foreign Emoluments Clause in guarding against it. Representative William C.C. Claiborne described the Clause as "intended to lock up every door to foreign influence, to the influence of Courts and Monarchies, which could not but prove baneful to every free country."⁴³ Representative James Bayard noted that "[i]f presents were allowed to be received without number, and privately, they might produce an improper effect, by seducing men from an honest attachment for their country, in favor of that which was loading them with favors."⁴⁴ Representative Matthew Lyon expressed a refusal to consent to the acceptance of any foreign emoluments, as "he should not be willing to lay this country under an obligation to a foreign country by our Ministers accepting presents."⁴⁵

28. At the same time, lawmakers stressed that the dangers of foreign influence and divided loyalty were reduced when officeholders obeyed the Constitution's mandate by seeking the consent of Congress before accepting any foreign benefit. As Representative Bayard explained, the Clause required officeholders "to make known to the world whatever presents they might receive from foreign Courts and to place themselves in such a situation as to make it impossible for them to be unduly influenced by any such presents.”⁴⁶ Representative Harrison Gray Otis likewise noted: “When every present to be received must be laid before Congress, no fear need be apprehended from the effects of any such presents. For, it must be presumed, that the gentleman who makes the application has done his duty, as he, at the moment he makes the application, comes before his country to be judged.”⁴⁷

29. In short, as Secretary of State Madison explained in 1803, “the Constitution of the United States has left with Congress the exclusive authority to permit the acceptance of presents from foreign governments by persons holding offices under the United States.”⁴⁸ In order “to exclude corruption and foreign influence,”⁴⁹ an officeholder must “make known to the world”⁵⁰ any benefit he wishes to accept from a foreign state and “come before his country to be judged”⁵¹ by seeking “the Consent of the Congress.”⁵²

30. By extending the reach of these important rules to everyone who holds “any Office of Profit or Trust” under the United States, the Founders ensured that the Foreign Emoluments Clause would apply to all federal officeholders and thus guard against corruption in the highest reaches of the new nation’s government.⁵³ Such officeholders naturally included the President of the United States. As Randolph explained at the Virginia Ratifying Convention, “[t]here is another provision against the danger . . . of the president receiving emoluments from foreign powers. . . . I consider, therefore, that he is restrained from receiving any present or emoluments whatever. It is impossible to guard better against corruption.”⁵⁴ And as noted, the Founders were especially afraid that foreign nations would use favors to subvert the loyalty of the President.⁵⁵

31. Historically, presidents have respected their obligations under the Foreign Emoluments Clause and have declined to accept presents or emoluments from foreign states without obtaining the consent of Congress:

President Martin Van Buren in 1840 was offered two horses, a case of rose oil, five bottles of rose water, a package of cashmere shawls, a Persian rug, a box of pearls, and a sword by the Imam of Muscat.⁵⁷ Writing to the Imam, Van Buren explained that “a fundamental law of the Republic which forbids its servants from accepting presents from foreign States or Princes, precludes me

33. Although Defendant Donald J. Trump has accepted the privilege of occupying the highest office in the land, he is not obeying the same rules as the federal officers and employees described above or following the example of compliance set by former presidents. He has refused to divest from his businesses and instead continues to accept financial payments and other benefits from foreign states through his many business entities without first obtaining the consent of Congress.

34. Defendant is the owner, in whole or in part, of hundreds of businesses, which are “linked in a complex network of interconnected individual corporations, limited liability companies and partnerships. The list includes more than 500 separate entities—hotels, golf courses, media properties, books, management companies, residential and commercial buildings, . . . airplanes and a profusion of shell companies set up to capitalize on licensing deals.”⁷⁰ These business interests are located in the United States and in at least twenty foreign countries.⁷¹

exact nature of his holdings and the benefits he receives from them remain unclear. Defendant has refused to release his tax returns, and the complicated interconnection between the hundreds of discrete business entities and shell companies in which he owns an interest makes it impossible to determine the full scope of the benefits he is currently accepting from foreign states. Contributing to the lack of transparency, “[o]ver the last 12 months, about 70% of buyers of Trump properties were limited liability companies—corporate entities that allow people to purchase property without revealing all of the owners’ names.”⁷²

36. Defendant has not divested or otherwise given up his ownership interest in his worldwide business holdings since he was elected President of the United States.

37. Defendant has acknowledged, through his personal attorney, that his businesses receive funds and make a profit from payments by foreign governments, and that they will continue to do so while he is President.⁷³ Further, public reporting has confirmed that Defendant and his businesses have accepted benefits from foreign states since he took office.⁷⁴

38. These various benefits from foreign governments—payments, loans, permits, exemptions, policy changes, and intellectual property rights—constitute prohibited “Emolument[s]” and/or “present[s]” under the Foreign Emoluments Clause (hereinafter referred to collectively as “Emolument[s]” or “foreign emoluments”).⁷⁵

39. Defendant has not sought “the Consent of the Congress” with respect to any of the benefits that he has accepted, or will accept, from foreign states in conjunction with his business holdings.

40. Because Defendant has failed to come to Congress and seek consent before accepting foreign emoluments that have been confirmed through public reporting, it is impossible to know whether Defendant is accepting other foreign emoluments that have not yet been made public. Indeed, through his personal attorney, Defendant has indicated that he does not believe the Constitution requires him to seek or obtain Congress’s consent before accepting benefits arising out of exchanges between foreign states and his businesses.⁷⁶

41. Because Defendant has not sought congressional consent before accepting these foreign emoluments, nor provided information about them to Congress, Plaintiffs are unable to exercise their constitutional prerogative to authorize or reject the specific emoluments he is accepting. While some information about Defendant’s financial dealings with foreign states is publicly available in press reports and financial disclosures, that information is fragmentary. Even where reliable sources confirm specific transactions between foreign states and Defendant’s businesses, the complex structure of those transactions and Defendant’s financial holdings makes it impossible to determine precisely how a given arrangement benefits him or affects the foreign which specific term or terms they implicate. See, e.g., Schlei, supra note 67, at 280 (“medals and decorations have always been regarded as coming within the constitutional provision, although it has never been precisely articulated whether one of these constitutes a ‘present, Emolument, Office, or Title’”). Whether any of the benefits discussed below are better characterized as “present[s]” or “Emolument[s]” may depend on their terms and the circumstances under which they are conferred—information that Defendant has not fully disclosed.

⁷⁶ See, e.g., Donald Trump’s News Conference: Full Transcript and Video, supra note 73 (statement of Sheri A. Dillon) (“The Constitution does not require [Defendant] to do anything here.”).

state in question.⁷⁷ Without that information, Plaintiffs cannot judge whether they should consent to the acceptance of any particular payment or other benefit from a foreign state, as the Constitution requires.

42. In sum, Defendant's refusal to disclose to Congress the foreign emoluments he wishes to accept makes it impossible for Plaintiffs to judge whether any specific foreign emoluments should be approved, and often to know of their existence. Defendant has therefore denied Plaintiffs the opportunity to decide, on a case-by-case basis, whether to authorize his acceptance of particular emoluments from foreign states. The Constitution expressly demands that Plaintiffs be given that opportunity.

43. By accepting benefits from foreign states without first obtaining "the Consent of the Congress," Defendant is therefore committing numerous violations of the Foreign Emoluments Clause. Some of these violations have been partially described in media reports and other publicly available sources, as detailed below. But because Defendant refuses to come to Congress and seek consent, thereby preventing the transparency that "the Consent of the Congress" was designed to provide, other violations, upon information and belief, remain completely hidden.

Acceptance of Intellectual Property Rights

44. On February 14, 2017, the Chinese government registered a trademark to Defendant for branded construction services, "the result of a 10-year legal battle that turned in [Defendant]'s favor after he declared his candidacy."⁷⁸

approval of 38 new trademarks to Defendant and one of his companies, covering “branded spa and massage services, golf clubs, hotels, insurance, finance and real estate companies, restaurants, bars, and a trademark class that covers bodyguards, social escorts, and concierge services.”⁷⁹

46. In May 2017, the Chinese government granted Defendant preliminary approval of two more trademarks, one for catering services and one that “can be used in clothing like trousers, underwear and suits.”⁸⁰

47. On June 6 and June 13, 2017, the Chinese government granted Defendant preliminary approval of eight additional trademarks, covering services that include “construction, advertising, weather forecasting and dietary consulting.”⁸¹

48. Circumstances suggest that at least some of these trademarks were approved or expedited as a result of Defendant’s status as President of the United States. After the preliminary approval of trademarks in February and March, the director of a Hong Kong intellectual property consultancy “said he had never seen so many applications approved so expeditiously,”⁸² and those approvals closely followed Defendant’s abrupt decision as President to honor the one-China policy, in contrast to his earlier statements.⁸³ Moreover, many of the preliminary approvals granted since Defendant became President were for trademarks that the Chinese government had previously rejected.⁸⁴ Regarding these reversals, another intellectual property attorney stated: “The speed with which these appeals were decided is mind-blowing. . . . I have never seen any decisions made that quickly. That suggests special treatment.”⁸⁵

49. Possession of these various trademarks “offers a potential business foothold for [Defendant]’s family company and protects his name in a country notorious for counterfeiters,”⁸⁶ benefits that are of particular value to Defendant as his company prepares to build twenty to thirty hotels in major Chinese cities.⁸⁷ Foreign trademarks “can be enormously valuable—whether they are intended as groundwork for future business activity or defensive measures against squatting to protect the value of the brand,”⁸⁸ and a Trump Organization spokesman has stated that the company has pursued Chinese trademarks “to protect its brand and overall intellectual property rights from third-party infringers.”⁸⁹

50. By accepting the registration of these trademarks, Defendant has violated the Foreign Emoluments Clause because he did not first seek and obtain “the Consent of the Congress” before accepting these benefits from a foreign state.

51. As of April 2017, according to one investigation, Defendant’s companies had 157 trademark applications pending in 36 foreign nations.⁹⁰ Accepting the registration of these trademarks would violate the Foreign Emoluments Clause unless Defendant first sought and obtained “the Consent of the Congress,” which he has not done.

In 2013, Trump Old Post Office LLC signed a lease with the General Services Administration, so it could house Trump International Hotel Washington, D.C. in the Old Post Office building located at 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004. Defendant owns approximately 77 percent of Trump Old Post Office LLC.⁹¹

An attendee who works with foreign officials noted that “[t]he place was packed” and that “much of the discussion among Washington-based diplomats [was] over ‘how are we going to build ties with the new administration.’”⁹⁴

54. According to public reports, diplomats plan to stay at the hotel to curry favor with Defendant because of his position as President of the United States. “In interviews with a dozen diplomats . . . some said spending money at Trump’s hotel is an easy, friendly gesture to the new president.”⁹⁵ According to an Asian diplomat, “Why wouldn’t I stay at [Defendant’s] hotel blocks from the White House, so I can tell the new president, ‘I love your new hotel!’ Isn’t it rude to come to his city and say ‘I am staying at your competitor?’”⁹⁶ One Middle Eastern diplomat put it even more simply: “Believe me, all the delegations will go there.”⁹⁷

55. Indeed, during the first four months of 2017, Defendant’s company made nearly $2 million in profit from the hotel, although the company had earlier projected that it would lose over $2 million during that period.⁹⁸ These profits accumulated despite an occupancy rate well below standard for the industry,⁹⁹ and despite the hotel’s ranking by a “travel group that specializes in high-end accommodations” as “the world’s third-lousiest new hotel.”¹⁰⁰ “Driving the profits

56. By virtue of his ownership of the Trump International Hotel Washington, D.C., Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from a “foreign State” or its agent or instrumentality every time foreign diplomats stay at the hotel, foreign embassies hold events there, or foreign governments otherwise pay for rooms there. On information and belief, there have been at least three such incidents since Defendant’s inauguration:

- a. In late January 2017, “[a] lobbying firm working for Saudi Arabia paid for a room at [Defendant]’s Washington hotel after Inauguration Day,” as part of its effort to bring activists to Washington “to urge Congress to repeal the law letting 9/11 victims’ families sue the kingdom.”¹⁰² This transaction marked “the first publicly known payment on behalf of a foreign government to a Trump property since [Defendant] became president.”¹⁰³ The lobbying firm made additional payments to the hotel in early February 2017, and all payments were reimbursed by the Saudi government.¹⁰⁴ Between November 2016 and February 2017, the firm paid Defendant’s hotel approximately $270,000 for lodging, catering, and parking—all reimbursed by the Saudi government.¹⁰⁵

b. On February 22, 2017, the Embassy of Kuwait held its National Day Celebration at Trump International Hotel Washington, D.C. According to cost estimates from the hotel, the price of the celebration was between $40,000 and $60,000.¹⁰⁶

c. On or about April 6, 2017, the Ambassador & Permanent Representative of Georgia to the United Nations stayed at Trump International Hotel Washington, D.C.¹⁰⁷

Acceptance of Payments Derived from Real Estate Holdings

58. Defendant owns Trump Tower, a mixed-use skyscraper located at 725 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. is owned by the United Arab Emirates.¹⁰⁹

59. By virtue of his ownership of Trump Tower and the leases of these entities, Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from a “foreign State” or its agent or instrumentality. Defendant has not sought or received “the Consent of the Congress” to accept these “Emolument[s]” and is therefore violating the Foreign Emoluments Clause.

60. Defendant also owns Trump World Tower, which is located at 845 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017.

61. In 2001, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia purchased a floor of Trump World Tower, and the floor currently belongs to the Saudi Mission to the United Nations.¹¹⁰ At the time of the sale, the floor had “yearly common charges of $85,585 for building amenities.”¹¹¹

62. If Saudi Arabia continues to pay common charges to Defendant’s company, Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from a “foreign State” or its agent or instrumentality, and he will have done so without first seeking and receiving “the Consent of the Congress,” in violation of the Foreign Emoluments Clause.

produced television show “The Apprentice.” In that role, he is contractually entitled to a percentage of the profits derived from licensing the show and its related spin-offs to television networks, including in foreign countries. “The show has current iterations in the U.K., Brazil, Bulgaria, Indonesia and Vietnam; each of these must pay MGM a licensing fee for the show’s name and set-up, a portion of which goes to Trump.”¹¹²

64. In the United Kingdom, the television network that pays these licensing fees is owned and operated by the government. Specifically, the state-owned network BBC One broadcasts a version of “The Apprentice,”¹¹³ for which the network pays a licensing fee, a portion of which goes to Defendant.

65. By taking a portion of licensing fees paid by foreign governments, Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from a “foreign State” or its agent or instrumentality, and he will have done so without first seeking and receiving “the Consent of the Congress,” in violation of the Foreign Emoluments Clause.

Acceptance of Regulatory Benefits including in Argentina,¹¹⁴ China,¹¹⁵ India,¹¹⁶ Indonesia,¹¹⁷ Scotland,¹¹⁸ Turkey,¹¹⁹ United Arab Emirates,¹²⁰ and the Philippines.¹²¹ Many of these ventures are in the planning stages, and as public reports note, “foreign developers could stand to benefit if their governments were to grease the skids for Trump-branded projects as a way to curry favor with the new American president.”¹²² Indeed, since the election, there have been reports of Defendant asking for, and receiving, such help from foreign governments:

accepting the payments and benefits discussed above suggests that Defendant may have accepted other payments and benefits from foreign states that have not yet been made public. Neither the Plaintiffs nor the public, therefore, can know the full range of Defendant's unconstitutional acceptance of foreign emoluments.

69. By accepting such benefits without first obtaining congressional consent, Defendant is causing the harms that the Founders sought to prevent when they adopted the Foreign Emoluments Clause. The Clause was meant to ensure “the undivided loyalty of individuals occupying positions of trust under our government,”¹²⁷ because, as the Founders recognized, “[t]hose who hold offices under the United States must give the government their unclouded judgment and their uncompromised loyalty.”¹²⁸ Defendant's conduct deprives the American people of assurance that their highest elected official is pursuing their best interests with undivided loyalty.

70. For instance, as Defendant addresses critical trade issues with China, which could dramatically affect the American economy and American jobs, he may be influenced by the fact that New York's Trump Tower will soon be renegotiating its lease with the state-owned Industrial and Commercial Bank of China,¹²⁹ or the fact that the Chinese government recently granted him numerous trademarks enabling his companies to pursue lucrative business opportunities in that country.¹³⁰

71. As Defendant brokers arms deals with Saudi Arabia,¹³¹ as he navigates conflicts between Saudi Arabia and Qatar,¹³² and as he decides whether to commit U.S. resources to support Saudi military actions in Yemen, which potentially could escalate and put American servicemembers in harm's way, he may be influenced by his desire to pursue hotel deals in Saudi Arabia requiring government approvals.¹³³ Indeed, Defendant said during the presidential campaign that he “would want to protect Saudi Arabia” from Iranian aggression and also stated: “Saudi Arabia, I get along with all of them. They buy apartments from me. They spend $40 million, $50 million. Am I supposed to dislike them?”¹³⁴

72. As Defendant decides how to shape U.S. policy toward Russia, he may be influenced by his long-standing, though yet unrealized, desire to build housing and hotels in Russia,¹³⁵ which could also require government approvals or licenses. Indeed, Donald Trump Jr.,

Defendant's son and an executive in the Trump Organization, has in the past acknowledged the business ties between Defendant and Russia, noting in 2008 that "Russians make up a pretty disproportionate cross-section of a lot of our assets" and that "we see a lot of money pouring in from Russia."¹³⁶

73. Finally, as Defendant weighs the United States' response to allegations that Philippine president Rodrigo Duterte has endorsed extrajudicial killings and other human rights abuses, he may be influenced by the millions of dollars he is set to receive in licensing revenue from the new Trump Tower in Manila, particularly because his business partner in that venture was appointed by President Duterte to serve as a top trade envoy to the United States.¹³⁷

74. As Defendant makes countless other foreign policy decisions, he may similarly be influenced by how those decisions will affect his business pursuits. And because Defendant is not coming to Congress and identifying the emoluments he wishes to accept, the American people will have no way of knowing whether his actions as President reflect only his beliefs about what is best for the country, or whether they are partly motivated by personal financial considerations. For instance, when Defendant publicly advocated during the presidential campaign for a ban on

Muslims entering the United States, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan called for Defendant's name to be removed from the Trump Towers Istanbul, two high-rises containing offices and luxury apartments, connected by a shopping mall. But after Defendant subsequently defended Erdogan's suppression of political dissidents, "the calls for the renaming of the Trump Towers Mall ended."¹³⁸ Defendant himself has acknowledged that he has "a little conflict of interest" regarding Turkey because "I have a major, major building in Istanbul."¹³⁹

75. To avoid even the possibility that conflicts of interest like these would harm the American people by compromising the judgment of their leaders, the Founders laid down the strict prohibitions of the Foreign Emoluments Clause.

B. Plaintiffs' Injuries

76. The text of the Foreign Emoluments Clause expressly assigns members of Congress a role in regulating federal officeholders' acceptance of emoluments from foreign states. By providing that persons holding an "Office of Profit or Trust" under the United States may accept such "Emolument[s]" with, and only with, "the Consent of the Congress," the Constitution makes clear that members of Congress must have the opportunity to cast a binding vote that gives or withholds their "Consent" before the President or any other federal officeholder accepts a foreign "Emolument."

77. Since taking office, Defendant has accepted, or necessarily will accept, numerous emoluments from foreign states.

78. Congress has not consented to Defendant's acceptance of any of the emoluments that he has received or will be receiving in the future.

¹³⁸ Paddock et al., supra note 116.

¹³⁹ Harwell & Narayanswamy, supra note 133.

79. Although the Foreign Emoluments Clause places on federal officeholders who wish to accept “Emolument[s]” the burden of seeking “the Consent of the Congress,” Defendant has never sought Congress’s consent for his acceptance of these foreign emoluments.

80. Similarly, Defendant has not provided Congress with any information about the foreign emoluments he has accepted or the transactions that produced them.

81. Defendant’s refusal to seek Congress’s consent and provide information about the foreign emoluments he is accepting makes it impossible for Plaintiffs to evaluate the unique circumstances of each emolument and decide, on a case-by-case basis, whether any of those specific emoluments should be approved.

82. By accepting emoluments without “the Consent of the Congress,” Defendant has violated the Foreign Emoluments Clause. In the process, Defendant has deprived Plaintiffs of their ability to vote on which emoluments he, as a federal officeholder, may accept. When legislators’ votes are “completely nullified” or “deprived of all validity,”¹⁴⁰ they may seek judicial redress to “have their votes given effect.”¹⁴¹ Such nullification occurs both where a previously cast vote has been unlawfully disregarded and where, as here, legislators are unlawfully denied an “opportunity to cast a binding vote” in the first place.¹⁴² By refusing to seek Plaintiffs’ consent as

¹⁴¹ Coleman v. Miller, 307 U.S. 433, 438 (1939); see Kennedy v. Sampson, 511 F.2d 430, 436 (D.C. Cir. 1974) (recognizing legislator’s standing “to vindicate the effectiveness of his vote” after “an illegal nullification” by the executive branch).

¹⁴² Goldwater v. Carter, 617 F.2d 697, 702-03 (D.C. Cir. 1979) (en banc) (recognizing standing where President’s action “deprived each individual Senator of his alleged right to cast a vote” on whether to terminate a treaty), vacated on other grounds, 444 U.S. 996 (1979); see Ariz. State Legislature v. Ariz. Indep. Redistricting Comm’n, 135 S. Ct. 2652, 2663, 2665 (2015) (recognizing standing where action that “strips the Legislature of its alleged prerogative to initiate redistricting” would “completely nullify any vote by the Legislature, now or in the future,” on that topic (brackets and quotation marks omitted)); Moore v. U.S. House of Representatives, 733 F.2d 946, 949 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (recognizing standing where members of the House of Representatives were allegedly denied their constitutional prerogative “to originate constitutionally required, “[t]he President’s action has deprived them of this opportunity completely, in the sense that they have no legislative power to exercise an equivalent voting opportunity.”¹⁴³ Plaintiffs thus have “a plain, direct and adequate interest in maintaining the effectiveness of their votes” on whether consent should be given to Defendant’s acceptance of foreign emoluments.¹⁴⁴

83. Without a judicial order, Plaintiffs cannot force Defendant to obey the Constitution’s text by seeking their consent before accepting such foreign emoluments. The declaratory and injunctive relief that Plaintiffs are seeking would redress this injury by ensuring that Defendant accepts no “present, Emolument, Office, or Title” from any “foreign State” without first giving them an opportunity to vote on whether to provide their consent.

CLAIMS

COUNT I
Violations of the Foreign Emoluments Clause
(Declaratory Relief)

84. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every foregoing paragraph of this Complaint as if set forth here in full.

85. There is an actual controversy between Plaintiffs and Defendant as to the meaning of the Foreign Emoluments Clause and its application to Defendant and his conduct. Specifically, Plaintiffs allege that Defendant, by virtue of his continuing ownership of vast business interests bills for raising revenues”); Am. Fed’n of Gov’t Emps., AFL-CIO v. Pierce, 697 F.2d 303, 305 (D.C. Cir. 1982) (recognizing standing where legislator was allegedly deprived by the executive branch of his “statutory right to participate in the legislative process”); cf. Raines, 521 U.S. at 824 (denying standing because legislators could not claim that the statute they were challenging “will nullify their votes in the future”).

around the world, has been, or necessarily soon will be, accepting emoluments from foreign states. Because Defendant has not sought and received the consent of Congress, he is in violation of the Foreign Emoluments Clause. Defendant, through his personal attorney, has indicated that he disagrees with these allegations, believing instead that “[t]he Constitution does not require [Defendant] to do anything here.”¹⁴⁵

86. Plaintiffs are entitled to declaratory relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2201. A declaration resolving the actual controversy between Plaintiffs and Defendant will aid in the resolution of legal issues in this action. Without this relief, Plaintiffs will continue to suffer injury.

COUNT II
Violations of the Foreign Emoluments Clause
(Injunctive Relief)

87. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every foregoing paragraph of this Complaint as if set forth here in full.

88. Defendant is a “Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust” under the Foreign Emoluments Clause.

89. The Foreign Emoluments Clause prohibits “Person[s] holding any Office of Profit or Trust” under the United States from accepting “present[s]” or “Emolument[s] . . . of any kind whatever”—that is, anything of value and any benefits, monetary or nonmonetary—from “any King, Prince, or foreign State,” without “the Consent of the Congress.”

90. As described more fully in paragraphs 34-62 herein, Defendant has committed and, absent this Court’s intervention, will continue to commit violations of the Foreign Emoluments Clause because he has accepted, or necessarily will accept, “Emolument[s]” from foreign states without obtaining the consent of Congress.

¹⁴⁵ Donald Trump’s News Conference: Full Transcript and Video, supra note 73.

91. By accepting “Emolument[s]” from foreign states without obtaining the consent of Congress, Defendant has denied each Plaintiff the opportunity to cast binding votes on whether to provide his or her consent to Defendant’s acceptance of these individual “Emolument[s].”

92. Plaintiffs are entitled to injunctive relief to stop the above-mentioned injury, and this Court has the power to grant such relief pursuant to its inherent ability to grant equitable relief and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Such relief would order Defendant not to accept “any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever” from a foreign state without obtaining “the Consent of the Congress,” thus ensuring that individual members of Congress have the opportunity to vote on a case-by-case basis whether to give their consent, as the Constitution requires.

VI.
PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter a judgment in Plaintiffs’ favor and against Defendant, consisting of:

(a) A declaratory judgment stating that:

(1) Defendant is a “Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust” within the meaning of the Foreign Emoluments Clause;

(2) the Foreign Emoluments Clause prohibits any “Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust” from accepting any benefits of value, monetary or nonmonetary, from “any King, Prince, or foreign State”;

(3) the phrase “any King, Prince, or foreign State” under the Foreign Emoluments Clause includes any foreign government and any agent or instrumentality thereof; and

(4) by accepting “Emolument[s]” from foreign states without first seeking and obtaining “the Consent of the Congress,” Defendant is violating the Foreign

Emoluments Clause;

- (b) Injunctive relief, enjoining Defendant from accepting “Emolument[s]” from foreign states without first obtaining the consent of Congress; and
- (c) Such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.
